Introduction

Research is the way forward in any field of medicine, without which medicine cannot progress. Hence the saying: ‘lifelong learning is part of medicine’. Without doubt, there are many good studies within the O&G fraternity. However, for a good study/ research to be impactful, good writing technique, format and choice of journal is important. Scientific writing is also an art.

The objectives of this workshop are:

1. to guide participants in choosing the most suitable journal to publish their works
2. to guide participants on different reporting formats depending on the various types of researches
3. to expose participants to good writing habits
4. to give an overview of the peer review system, reviewers’ view and how to write a rebuttal to a review
5. to expose participants to tips to successful publication
