

CONTRA CEPTION TODAY

ROMA, ITALY
6-8 MARCH 2024

Dear friends,

the International Academy of Human Reproduction (IAHR) is organizing a workshop in Rome, Italy (Roma Eventi: Congress Centre - 3 minutes' walk from Piazza di Spagna -Spanish Steps-) from March 6th to 8th, 2024, titled "Contraception Today in an 8 Billion People World: Ethical, Efficacy, and Safety Issues". This workshop is supported by several leading national and international Gynecological and Obstetrical scientific societies, and also by the FIGO. The IAHR is pleased to offer a 20% discount to all the scientific societies part of the FIGO, for their members who register to the workshop.

The event, bringing together some of the most prominent researchers in the field, addresses general and specific topics related to the current global need for family planning and the crucial importance of contraception. It explores methods based on identifying the fertile period or inhibiting ovulation, both of same ethical value, analysed with strict criteria for efficacy and safety concerning women's health.

Our ultimate goal, taking into account population trends, resource availability, climatic changes, access to healthcare services, war and violence outbreaks, is to show that in the present World, contraception, today, is central when we deal with women, families, offspring protection and the inalienable rights associated with each of latter.

Each presentation will be followed by an in-depth discussion that aims to put together the data that will be considered to write the final document. The paper will be published in high-impact scientific journals and shared via social media. In social media it will display also the list of the registered persons who, through their active participation in the Workshop support the ethical and scientific importance of this event.

In order to redeem the discount offered to the FIGO members, you just need to enter the "register" section of the event official website (<https://contraceptiontoday.humanreacademy.org/>), create your personal account and proceed with the registration to the workshop. In the section showing the official registration fee, you will find a field for discount codes where you can add the code figo20.
